THE FIRST FOREIGN MISSIONARIES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-52.
GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul and His Friend Go to Tell Others About Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul and Barnabas Sent as Missionaries.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Paul Found His Life Work.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Holy Spirit in Missions.

This lesson marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the church. The occasion for the beginning of this work was a meeting of certain prophets and teachers at Antioch. While these ministers were engaged in praying the Lord laid upon their hearts so heavily the evangelization of the world that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of the Lord in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that meets God's approval.

I. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2, 3).

The Spirit directed the church to send forth Barnabas and Saul to the work whereunto He had called them. The Spirit called and the church recorded the motion by sending those who were Spirit-called. A real call to missionary service comes from the Holy Spirit. It should be the concern of the church to constantly seek the mind of the Spirit relative to the sending forth of laborers into the Lord's vineyard. It is to be noted that the Spirit called and the church sent the very best men from their company at Antioch. This is as it should be. Success in the mission field is dependent upon the laying of her best men and women upon the altar by the church.

II. Barnabas and Saul Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4, 5).

After a second season of prayer and fasting the church formally ordained these first foreign missionaries for their work. Ordination by the imposition of hands has its proper place. Cyprus being the home of Barnabas perhaps accounts for their first going to this country. It is most natural that those who have heard the good news should go first to their kindred and friends. Then, too, Barnabas was acquainted with the country and people and could thus be assured of a proper hearing among them. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was commanded by Christ to go home and tell what great things the Lord had done for him (Luke 9:39).

III. Barnabas and Saul Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of the Word of God. Elymas maliciously sought to turn the deputy's mind from the faith. This first obstacle encountered, as the gospel was being carried to the heathen world, was overcome through the power of the Holy Spirit. Paul denounced Elymas in most scathing terms, calling him the child of the devil, declaring that he was full of guile and villany, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, and accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord.

IV. Paul and Barnabas in the Synagogues at Antioch in Pisidia (vv. 13-52).

From Paphos Paul and Barnabas with Mark went northward to Perga. It is from this place, perhaps because of hardship, that Mark went back. He started out with good intentions, but the trials seemed too great for him to endure. Mark redeemed himself later though when they started on their second missionary journey Paul would not consent for Mark to accompany them, although he later testified in Mark's favor (II Tim. 4:11). From Perga they went to Antioch in Pisidia and entered the synagogue on the Sabbath day. While he was the apostle to the Gentiles he began with the Jews. After the usual reading of the Scriptures, in response to the invitation of the rulers, Paul delivered his first recorded sermon. This sermon is worthy of careful study. When analyzed we find it had four parts. 1. Historical (vv. 17-23). 2. Political (vv. 24-27). 3. Doctrinal (vv. 38, 39) 4. Practical (vv. 40, 41).

The effect of this sermon was that many Jews and proselytes requested to hear these words again. Almost the whole city came to hear the Word of God the next Sabbath. While many came to hear these words jealousy provoked open opposition.

CREDIT BODY PUTS BRAKE ON CROOKS

208 Convicted of Business Frauds in Year.

New York.—Convictions of 208 commercial criminals throughout the United States and indictments against 419 persons with business fraud were secured by the National Association of Credit Men in the last 12 months according to the annual report of Samuel Ardrox, Jr., comptroller of the association, for the fiscal year.

The report says that since the national credit protection fund of $1,400,000 was raised by the association three years ago, 444 commercial criminals have been convicted on the strength of evidence secured by the credit organization, and indictments have been returned against 1,142 persons, of whom 520 are awaiting trial.

It says further that during the last 12 months 640 requests for investigations of bankruptcy were received by the association from business houses and that in the preceding yearly period the number of requests was 789.

Crimes Show Decrease.

"The decrease in the number of cases investigated is significant for two reasons," the report says. "First, a great many fake failure artists are being sent to prison, and, second, older dishonest business men are being discouraged from perpetrating fraud by fear of this new force in business.

"Although the number of cases handled has diminished, the number of convictions secured has grown from 148 in the 1926-27 period to 208 in the last year. Indictments have increased from 405 the former period to 419 in the 12 months just closed.

"It is difficult to estimate accurately the sum saved for business concerns by the forced retirement of several hundred bankruptcy crooks, but it is reasonable to believe, in view of the lessening number of fraudulent failures, that vigorous prosecution efforts have prevented the loss of many millions of dollars."

Mr. Ardrox points out that the cost of carrying on the credit association's credit protection department has been less than the sum recovered from bankrupt estates in the form of hidden assets. He says that in the past three years the association's investigators have recovered and turned back to estates $720,000 in concealed assets.

"Recovering assets is incidental to the chief objective of credit protection activities, which is to punish commercial criminals by sending them to prison," he asserts.

Some Fail to Prosecute.

"One of the principal difficulties met in the work is the unwillingness of a certain type of creditor to assist in prosecuting a crooked bankrupt who may have fleeced him of thousands of dollars.

"In a recent fake failure case only one of the 117 interested creditors agreed to prosecute. The others hoped to recover a small part of the money owed them by allowing the crook to go free.

"This practice of accepting compromise settlements from dishonest bankrupts leaves the crook free to continue his operations at the expense of his original victims and others after he has re-established his business under a new disguise."

The report says that more than 90,000 creditor concerns in all parts of the United States have been financially interested in bankruptcies investigated by the National Association of Credit Men. It is further stated that of the 208 convictions secured in the 1927-28 period, 61 were in the East, 82 in the Middle West and 13 on the Pacific coast.

HALF-HEARTED
Never Felt Well

"I don't see why women will drag around, in a half-hearted way, never feeling well, barely able to drag, when Cardui might help put them on their feet, as it did me," says Mrs. Geo. S. Hunter, of Columbus, Ohio.

"I suffered with dreadful pains in my sides. I had to go to bed and stay sometimes two weeks.

"I could not work, and just dragged around the house.

"I got very thin. I went from a hundred and twenty-six pounds down to less than a hundred.

"I sent to the store for Cardui, and before I had taken the first bottle I began to improve. My side hurt less, and I began to mend in health.

"Cardui acted as a fine tonic. I do not feel like the same person. I am well now, and still gaining."

NATIVES PUZZLED BY U. S. SCIENTIST

Think Anthropologist Is Hunting for Treasure.

Washington.—When an American comes down to the Caribbean and begins industriously digging along a coast where pirates once flourished, what is he probably looking for? If you answer "buried treasure" you agree with what the people of Santo Domingo thought when Herbert Krieger of the United States National museum landed at their island with a request to dig among the shell heaps left here by prehistoric cave men.

Mr. Krelger had credentials. He is a straightforward person. But—he had a strong chest with his baggage! The Santo Domingans remembered that a few years ago a pot of Haitian gold was found on the governor's estate, and they watched the digging. The strong chest which Mr. Krieger carefully loaded with bits of broken crockery of prehistoric Indians was examined incredulously. When the visitor sailed for the States with no doubloons and with a perfectly satisfied expression on his face, they were still puzzled.

In his report of the expedition, which Mr. Krelger has just presented to the Smithsonian Institution, he says that the caves of Samana bay yielded some thirty kinds of shells. These were the remains of seafood dinners eaten by innumerable cave dwellers who occupied the island before western inhabitants came. Mr. Krieger also collected bones of birds and animals cast into the refuse heaps of the cave dwellings, and brought back specimens to show the kind of animal life that abounded in this tropical island before Columbus' time.

The task of piecing together the civilization of the prehistoric Indians was made more difficult by the fact that fertilizer concerns have removed large quantities of the shell heaps in collecting last grass and limestone phosphate from the caves.

"The region is of special interest to anthropologists," Mr. Krelger reports, "because of the presence of many heretofore unexplored aboriginal village sites and cave habitations."

Rates on Air Mail Are to Be Reduced

Chicago.—It will cost only one-quarter as much to send the average business or social letter by air mail on and after August 1 as it does now, for on that date the rate will be reduced from ten cents a half ounce to five cents for the first ounce or fraction and ten cents for each succeeding ounce or fraction, according to an announcement by Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. This means that an ordinary letter may be sent anywhere in this country for five cents and that an air mail package which now requires $2.00 postage may then be sent to any part of the country for $1.05.

The regulations on air mail are simple. Any mailable matter (except perishable matter liable to damage by freezing) may be sent by air mail. Registered, insured and C. O. D. matter is carried by air mail as are packages not exceeding 50 pounds in weight and not exceeding 84 inches in length and girth combined. Special delivery stamps still further expedite delivery of domestic air mail.

Denies Owning Artificial Arm; Now He Wants It

Montesano, Wash.—Because E. G. "Wienie" Wagner swore that a left arm did not belong to him he is having considerable trouble in getting the sheriff to give it to him. The arm, an artificial one, was found near the scene of a liquor raid and was held as evidence. Wagner, who is minus an arm, is alleged to have dropped it in his flight. On the witness stand Wagner denied ownership of the limb. He was acquitted. Now he is trying to get the sheriff to give it to him.

HOW A GOAT GOT "GOAT" OF A GUIDE

"Hard Luck" Joe Loses Lariat Showing Skill.

Jasper Park, Alberta.—"Hard Luck" Joe Smithers, guide, Jasper Park, is looking around for a new lariat. Which "Hard Luck" Joe declares, is his second piece of bad luck since he left the prairies. His first was in coming to the mountains. "Hard Luck" Joe has taken a dislike to the mountains.

Down on the prairies now a man can lope along for miles without winding his horse on a trail that should be a staircase with a hand rail to match. And then, too, on the prairies a man has a chance to show how good he is with a rope. In the mountains it is different.

Joe was explaining this at some length to his tourist party at the head of Maligne lake. "Hope"—why he could "rope" anything.

She was a mild-looking young lady, but, as Joe says, "straight pretty," and she had a sharp pair of eyes as well, because she spotted a mountain goat only about 500 feet above the camp, close to a group of spruce trees. "There," she said, "Mr. Cowboy, is something you can't rope."

Joe snorted. After the steers he'd thrown, the calves he'd "hooked," and the caryuses whose ears he'd flicker with his loop—"Say a man wouldn't even need a horse for a goat."

Even now Joe is not quite certain as to how he got close enough to the goat to throw his rope. But he did. It settled nicely over the two black horns and the white head. There was a moment's pause while the goat surveyed Joe in mild surprise, and while Joe thought of "bending" his rope around a tree. But there was no tree quite handy enough.

And then the goat made up his mind. He was taking a different direction to Joe—but not for the first hundred yards or so. Joe hung on as long as he could. That rawhide lariat had cost a lot of money. But the goat had his eye set on a black peak straight ahead—and up—considerably up. The rope burned Joe's hands as it passed through them.

On his return Joe admitted to the mild-looking young lady that "goats sure come husky in the mountains." Outside of that remark he was considerably silent for the rest of the trip.

German Tourists Bring New Problem to France

Paris.—France has a new grievance against the former kaiser and Hindenburg, with no chance of getting satisfaction without violating international postal regulations.

It started with the sudden interest of German tourists in the scene of signing of the armistice in the forest of Compiegne near Rethondes and the advent of the ingenious sellers of postcards and other souvenirs.

As if by order from their political groups, the German visitors during recent weeks have been addressing cards to the former kaiser, Hindenburg and others. On Sundays these missives have numbered as many as 4,000.

But the grievance does not end there—in a large majority of the cases, the senders fail to pay sufficient postage. The French postal authorities are not allowed to hold up the correspondence for this reason, however, and the little post office at Rethondes complains that it is being overworked.

More Cartons in Use to Keep Butter Clean

Washington.—Increased use of cartons for sanitary reasons in packing butter for retail sale is considered advisable by health officials in 117 cities.

In a special survey by the federal bureau of agricultural economics officials declared that cartons lessen the likelihood of contamination both in the homes and in retail stores, and are a means of checking the absorption of undesirable odors.

Woman Judge Applies Smile and Lorgnette

New York.—Judge Genevieve R. Cline, five feet of femininity, clad in silken judicial robes from whose heavy folds she occasionally drew forth a gold lorgnette, sat on the bench of the United States customs court in Manhattan, and for one case considered it an unusual procedure.

With Judge Waite, she disposed of a long calendar of routine government cases and after court was over, exclaimed:

"I'm so glad that I am being accepted as the new judge and not placed in the class of being some kind of a rarity—a woman judge."

And the first women ever appointed to the customs court—the highest honor that has been awarded to women since they were enfranchised—smiled very prettily.

Judge Cline looks young, but she has six years of government experience and several years law practice in back of her. She is the rare combination of a feminine-looking woman with a good legal mind. She was appointed to the customs bench by President Coolidge at a salary of $10,000. The position is for life.

When Pressing Flowers

Pressed flowers mounted on cards are more durable if dipped in transparent liquid celluloid, thus producing a permanent coating.
